

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The image data of an image captured by a user using an imaging apparatus is transmitted to a home server apparatus by wireless communications. Upon receipt of the image data, the home server apparatus automatically transmits the image data to the print server apparatus, and the print server apparatus transmits electronic mail including an image data output suggestion message and a procedure of placing an order when the amount of image data of the user has exceeded a predetermined value.